The British analytics company Airfinity published a report this week estimating some 5,000 people were dying in China a day as a result of Chinese coronavirus infections – a significantly higher number than the seven Chinese government officials admitted to all week.

The scientific estimate, based on analyses of hospitals and cases in the country, preceded a report published Friday by Bloomberg claiming that internal Chinese government documents show a staggering 37,000 coronavirus infections being documented a day in the country.

The Chinese Communist Party subjected its population to a brutal policy known as “zero-Covid” for nearly three years in which it implemented sudden, city-wide lockdowns and forced thousands of people into quarantine camps if testing positive for coronavirus, even if experiencing mild or asymptomatic cases. An untold number of people died of suicide, starvation, and lack of access to health care while the policy was in full vigor, triggering nationwide protests unseen since the pro-democracy movement crushed by the Tiananmen Square massacre in 1989.

In early December, in response to the protests, communist officials announced that they had abruptly found the omicron variant causes less severe disease than previous versions of the Chinese coronavirus – a conclusion international scientists had reached a year ago – and therefore they would stop implementing “large-scale” lockdowns and allow people to forego being imprisoned in quarantine camps. The announcement prompted panic-buying of basic medicines such as ibuprofen and acetaminophen and has, anecdotal evidence suggests, resulted in massive overflow in the nation’s hospitals.

The Chinese government’s official statistics nonetheless do not show any significant spike in cases or deaths. As of Thursday, Beijing claimed to have documented seven coronavirus deaths this week, leaving unclear why such a death rate would result in long lines at funeral homes and overflowing morgues.

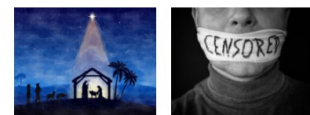

The Airfinity study suggested that the true death rate as a result of the virus spreading in the country currently was closer to 5,000 deaths a day in a publication this week. Airfinity also estimated that 1 million new people were being infected by the virus in China a day.

"China has stopped mass testing and is no longer reporting asymptomatic cases. The combination means the official data is unlikely to be a true reflection of the outbreak being experienced across the country," Louise Blair, Airfinity head of vaccines and epidemiology, said.

Bloomberg on Friday claimed to be privy to Chinese National Health Commission documents showing that the regime believed that somewhere around 37 million people in China had been infected with the virus just this week. The report also claimed that 248 million people had been infected between December 1-20.

Nearly three years after it was first identified in China, the coronavirus is now spreading through the vast country. Experts predict difficult months ahead for its 1.4 billion people. Multiple reports citing unnamed sources within China suggest that unexplained deaths are rising among prominent Communist Party leaders and other national elites. The anti-communist Epoch Times newspaper reported on Friday that at least ten "famous Chinese medical experts" had died this month from unspecified "illness," not tallied among the seven identified as dead from coronavirus infections this week.

The publication had also documented a list on Thursday of Communist Party officials reported dead under mysterious circumstances this week.

Some reports indicated that the dead may not be coronavirus victims, but rather dying of issues medical professionals could address normally but did not receive care due to hospitals being overwhelmed. Writing in the Hong Kong-based South China Morning Post, columnist Wang Xiangwei tells the story of a friend who lost his father this week of "sudden cardiac death" after hours of insufficient care from medical professionals.

A man squats outside a treatment room as an elderly person receives help with breathing via a manual ventilator pump at the emergency department of the Baoding No. 2 Central Hospital in Zhuozhou city of Baoding prefecture in northern China's Hebei province on Wednesday, Dec. 21, 2022. (AP Photo, File)

"My friend's 84-year-old father, who had previously had a stroke, became unwell on Monday afternoon," Wang narrated. After the friend flew hundreds of miles from the southern island of Hainan back to Beijing, he found "his father was still in the ambulance" after being picked up hours prior. "It had been parked in front of the hospital entrance for nearly two hours."

The father died from "sudden cardiac death" shortly after finally receiving an ICU bed.

The hospital's morgue was reportedly overwhelmed with bodies.

"In a word, China is woefully underprepared for the chaos that is inevitably unfolding since the controls were lifted, as seen in other countries," Wang concluded.

In its final press conference of the year on Wednesday, World Health Organization (W.H.O.) leaders expressed worry regarding the little known about the current coronavirus situation in China. Director-General Tedros Adhanom Ghebreyesus told reporters his agency was “very concerned over the evolving situation in China with increasing reports of severe disease.”

“In order to make a comprehensive risk assessment of the situation on the ground, W.H.O. needs more detailed information on disease severity, hospital admissions, and requirements for ICU support,” he said. “W.H.O. is supporting China to focus its efforts on vaccinating people at the highest risk across the country and we continue to offer our support for clinical care and protecting its health system.”

There is deep learning on display here. Lockdowns don't solve a thing. They don't make the virus go away. Lockdowns only delay the inevitable. It is a fool's errand to think that we have the power to eliminate the virus. The Great Barrington declaration got it right. The health establishment was dominated by lazy, incompetent fools. They moved as a herd.....in the wrong direction thinking that their shutdowns and useless masks were working. Learn from the Chinese. Zero COVID did not work and could never work. Lockdowns the same. Take measures to protect the most vulnerable and let people live. Oh. One more thing: natural immunity works.

The Bio-Weapon got out of the Wuhan Lab before the Commies could make their own vaccine.

China seeks to destroy entire Ethnicities and Races with DNA TARGETED VIRUSES.

Why go to war to take the Planet when you can simply virus everyone to death.

They didn't count on it targeting all the tobacco smokers in China, which is just about everyone.

I think the virus escaped before they were done changing it, and it left the lab with a few more capabilities than intended.

Also before they had a chance to create the anti-dote/vaccine. Prudent practitioners of bio warfare would have created the antidote/vaccine at the same time as they were creating the agent or at least not use the agent until they had a way to control it.

SARS-1 was developed to cull the masses of the weak and frail, the fake vaccine back then was designed to ensure success but caused irreversible damage to much of the population. Enter 2019 and the introduction of SARS-2 meant to take out those elderly and frail who survived the first round. Many of those in 2012 are now elderly and taxing the system, the new improved euthanization shots keeps the deaths camouflaged as a pandemic. SARS-2 also helped take out those who got the 2012 shots, along with the new shots.

We're witnessing a new form of genocide masked as a virus and healthcare. Women in their 40's cannot have replacement citizens, and they don't have enough females to replace the dying population either. Red Communist China.

2012 red flag on SARS-1.

If there is one, they have it. They are just removing the old people, the eaters who can't provide any benefit to the communist leadership. Mao killed right around 100 million. 500 to a billion people dead is nothing to these people.

It looks like China will not get rich before it gets old.
The dependency ratio in China has increased to 46.3 percent. This means that for every 100 people of working age, more than 46 seniors and children had to be supported.
The Chinese have effectively stopped having children. The Chinese Gen Alpha (2010 to 2025) is predicted to be less than 90 million i.e. the dependency ratio effectively the aged dependency ratio.
Current estimates put the Chinese elderly at 250 million and will increase to 308 million by 2050.
Best guess, different versions of the 'flu virus' should have started decreasing the Chinese surplus population in the winter of 2021/22 and every winter from then on.

Big difference is that the U.S. Total Fertility rate Rate is around 1.6 Birth Per Woman and people are clambering to become Mericans.
Chinese TFR is officially 1.7 but most China watchers put it at 1.1. People are not risking life and limb to get to China.

Around 2050 the supply of Mexicans and Latin Americans will start to decline.
Mexico's total fertility rate has recently dropped below the replacement level of 2.1 births per woman and in 2060 Latin America will reach peak population.
After that those from south of the border will be fewer and better educated and not looking for sweat labour.
Mexico will start looking to south of its border for labour but without much success.

Ha, ha, oh come on... they aren't dying from corona, a common cold virus, even if its weaponized. They are being murdered for population control with pharma injections which they like to call covid vaccines.
In China they're mainly just getting rid of excess male population, before it caused major problems. In USA they're murdering mostly low IQ who still trust government and doctors.
90% of Democrats took toxin injection (the lowest IQs).
60% of Republicans took it.
What the world is experiencing is reduction of the well known useles eaters. Indeed you can see your replacements coming from southern US border.
If you were one of those smart enough to reject covid vaccine, you better start learning spanish.

Taiwan for a long period of time was the best legitimate 1st world country in the world concerning COVID. It was almost impossible to get in and out of the country. Then they opened the tap, and things went to poo. It's starting to be pretty good now. I follow a lot of Taiwan Youtubers. One is a family that does videos I think more for posterity than for the likes of me. The mother usually does the narration in Chinese and English. Near the end of the school year in May or June her youngest kid caught COVID, they all caught COVID. She told me that she thought she was ok, went back to work, was giving a presentation and passed out from the lack of oxygen. Probably because of the mask. They just did a family trip to Kyoto Japan because she was doing better. Their most recent video, she states that she doesn't have the breathing ability back. They were walking around a lake and she ran out of steam. I commented I was sorry and she said she was still having trouble breathing at work, because of the masks. I asked her if plastic face shields could be used. "Yeah!!!! I forgot all about them!!! Thanks". There's no free lunch with COVID. Wrapping your country up in bubblewrap just delays the inevitable. I know, doesn't mean diddley, but it is what it is.

Most Taiwanese are over masks when outside these days. Some wear them on the streets. Get them out in the woods (the kind of videos I like) and no one is wearing them. It is a mask wearing society so there will always be a bit, but they've had enough.

The vaccines net a negative on Corona. Latest studies show an increase in risk of those who took it.

99.5% of those who caught it lived. So why so many dead people?

Old people in decent health actually don't need the "vaccine." The elderly's survival rate in the original, more virulent pandemic infection was 97% overall. It may help those with co-morbidities.

U have NO way of knowing that. The virus like all others mutates into a less severe version of itself. That's all that is happening. You would have to study a person with and with the vid to make that assumption and there are no studies perhaps it's the weakest that went first and fast, the newer cases are in people stronger health wise and the virus less lethal? i don't for a moment believe that the vaccines provide any benefit of keeping people out of the hospital or preventing serious illness. case in point, very small study: my sister, her husband, and son. she is vaccinated and boosted (she had to because she's a nurse) the guys are not. she contracted covid, passed it on to the guys. The guys had nothing more than an annoying bout of what were flu like symptoms and bounced back within 5 days. She, got sick... really sick and wound up in the hospital for a week stay. To this day, after 15 days, she's still not right. The guys are back working. I know, too small a sample, but in mixed vaxxed households it always seems the vaxxed get sicker than the unvaxxed.
